

Butterfly Conservation Europe
Inaugural Meeting
Laufen 29-31 October 2007-10-31

Conference resolution

The Laufen resolution: Save our Butterflies

The conference of experts from 31 countries is ringing alarm bells about the serious decline of butterflies and moths across Europe.

The conference believes that butterflies are important flagships of Europe's wildlife. They are valuable indicators of the health of Europe's environment and action to save them will contribute to the wellbeing of all citizens.

The conference calls on Governments at European, National and Regional levels to take more determined action to stop this serious loss of biodiversity.

The conference delegates commit to work together under the umbrella of Butterfly Conservation Europe to halt the loss of butterflies, moths and biodiversity.
